DESCRIPTION

Behavioral Health patients are spending many hours or days in a non-psychiatric setting, such as the Emergency Department or medical inpatient units. The proper management of acute agitation in psychiatric emergencies is essential to keep staff safe and ensure appropriate treatment for the patient. This live webinar focuses on the current pharmacotherapeutic options for the treatment of acute agitation in psychiatric emergencies. Participants will identify the pros and cons for current regimens and then apply this knowledge to case scenarios to identify the best pharmacotherapy options for specific patients.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

- Physicians
- Advanced Practice Nurses
- Physician Assistants
- Pharmacists
- Registered Nurses
- Other interested health care professionals

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this knowledge based live webinar, the participant will be able to:

- Review available pharmacotherapy options for the treatment of acute agitation in psychiatric emergencies
- Describe contraindications and precautions for current treatment options for acute agitation in psychiatric emergencies
- Formulate pharmacotherapy treatment strategies for a variety of acute agitation patient presentations
